'Squire Martin's Daughter Jane.

When in the fall the wind begins to git right cold an' blow,
An' the leaves fill up the orchard an' there comes a skift of snow
I can't help thinking of the time, an' wish it back again,
When I used to go a courtin' 'Squire Martin's daughter Jane.

The room was always warm an' bright an cherry as could be
An' in the corner sot a chair perticler for me
An' when the storms come lootin' hard with the winder pane
'Twas pleasant fun a courtin' 'Squire Martin's daughter Jane.

We popped the corn an' eat it an' toasted apples, too,
As there we sat together in the corner snug an' cosy,
An' I'm not ashamed to own it, I think that in the main
I was tolerably bad smitten with 'Squire Martin's daughter Jane.

And one day there come a city chap, drest in his Sunday-clo'es;
He kind o' took a shine to her, an' her to him, I s'pose;
An' he was han'somer than me, an' stylish-like, an' vain,
An' he took my job o' courtin' 'Squire Martin's daughter Jane.

He made stood his business, for 'twas just a little while
Till they married, moved to town, an' spread on heaps of style,
But I'd ben content to live just modest-like an plain,
If I could only married 'Squire Martin's daughter Jane.

It somewhat makes me lonesome to think of her to-night,
As the wind goes whistling up the flue an' the fire burns warm an' bright,
An' there's a yearning in my heart that's nigh akin to pain,
As I sit here silent, thinkin' o' 'Squire Martin's daughter Jane.

JENKS' DREAM.

Jenks had a queer dream the other night. He thought he saw a big Bolivia ring, and in the middle of it stood a pretty little champion who met and accidentally knocked over, one by one, a score or more of big, burly-looking fellows, as they advanced to the attack. Giants as they were in size, the valiant pigmy proved more than a match for them. It was all so funny that Jenks woke up laughing. He accounts for the dream by the fact that he had just come to the conclusion, after trying nearly every big, drastic pill on the market, that Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets, or "Little Sugar-coated Granules, easily "knock out" and beat all the big pills hollow. They are the original and only genuine Little Liver Pills.

Beware of imitations, which contain Poisonous Minerals. Always ask for Dr. Pierce's Pellets, which are Little, Sugar-coated Pills, or Anti-bilious Granules. One a Dose.

THE LOVERS' LEAP.

There is a beautiful stream winding among the green banks and rocky cliffs of one of our New England states; it empties into the broader river, which in turn hurries on to the sea.

There is a spot on the shore of this stream—a high, rocky cliff which is called "The Lovers' Leap."

Years ago a young Indian maiden took this fearful leap to a watery grave with her lover, because she was denied the husband of her choice.

Laura Cheney knows the story well. She has passed all her life on the shore of this beautiful stream.

Her father is a lumberman, and Laura keeps house for him in the little brown cabin which they call home.

Laura is a pretty girl in spite of the fact that she is brown with the sun's rays, and her dresses are of coarse material, and her shoes rough and heavy.

All the young lumberman know this, and one, Ben Herder, has paid innocent court to her for two years.

But Laura has never loved any one besides her father and the big mastiff, Prince, her young mother-friend having died at birth.

Ben is a brawny giant, with moody black eyes and a long black beard, and Laura is half afraid of him.

An excursion party from a distant city has been spending some days in the vicinity.

There is one young gentleman of whom Laura sees a good deal.

He is not as large a man as Herder, but is tall, erect, and graceful, with keen, gray eyes, closely cut, curling locks, a fine head, and a long, fair mustache.

His hands are whiter and dainter than Laura's—but they have muscles like steel, and he is anything but the "soft-so" that Ben Herder calls him.

This Godfrey Duston is so well pleased with the country that he allows the excursion party to depart without him, while he invests in a tent and a gun, and settles down to camp life near Abel Cheney's little brown cabin and declares his intention of staying through the very last of the golden autumn days.

Ben Herder scowls ominously when he hears this.

He hates this newcomer, who treats Laura with such gentle courtesy as she has never known before.

As Duston becomes better acquainted with her his gun is neglected, and they take long walks and sails together.

He tells Laura wonderful stories of the great world from whence he came; and she, in turn, reveals to him the secrets of the woods and relates among other things the legend of Lovers' Leap.

Godfrey, weary of the residents of society, weary of the frivolous women of his world, sore at heart because of one who has cruelly deceived him, draws a new and delightful magnetism from this pure and healthy child of the forest.

She has just enough knowledge of books to make her eager for more, and he becomes her teacher.

As the days go by he begins to ask himself if this is not a better life than the other—would he not be happier to win this child-woman for a wife and make a home there, close to the great heart of nature?

I think that this companionship with Laura is like a tonic to his listless, world-weary spirit—all the nobility of his nature comes to the surface in his intercourse with her.

He has not thought of the possible effect upon Laura, but she loves him, although she does not know it—

She [illegible] fear of Ben Herder [illegible] love to her [illegible]
"Do [illegible] Don [illegible]

He knows now that he loves this girl who has been so innocently happy with him—loves her with the truest sweetest love of his life.

At last Laura's dusky head appears above the waves.

Her great, startled eyes meet the white face of her lover as he bends toward her, and directly he lifts her into the canoe beside him.

She is trembling in every limb, but he keeps his arm about her and watches for Herder.

He does not come up.

When they find his body later on down the stream, they see a ragged cut across the temple, where he must have struck on the rocks at the foot of the cliff. Else that savage clasp about Laura's form would never have been loosened and she must have perished also.

Duston takes her home to her father, and receives his husky thanks in silence, then goes away to his tent.

He wishes to be alone for a little to think.

But he comes back in the afternoon, and goes straight to old Abel Cheney.

"Do you think that you could spare Laura to me, Mr. Cheney?" he asks.

The old man looks at him sharply from under his shaggy brows:

"What d'y mean, young man?"

"That I love her, and want her for my wife."

Abel Cheney looks a thorough aristocrat.

"Laura don't know nothing about your fine world Mr. Duston. She's just a little wild fawn—pretty enough in the woods, but not fit to be shut up in a grand house.

"May I ask her?" insists the young man.

"Wal, I low I can't prevent it," answers old Abel, dryly.

So Duston strides away to the woods, and finds Laura walking idly to and fro.

She looks at him with shy, startled eyes, very like the wild fawn which the old man has called her.

Duston takes her hands in his.

"Laura dear, I used to think myself a pretty good sort of a fellow until I knew you; but now, knowing how pure and sweet and innocent your life has been, I feel that I am not half good enough for you.

"Yet I love you, and want you for my wife. I have had another woman once, Laura, but she deceived me, and I came to believe all women like her, until I came here, and now, dear, I love you better than I ever loved her. Will you have me, Laura.

He is smiling now, but his face is very pale as he holds out two strong white hands to her.

Laura thinks she must be in a dream; she can frame no words for her answer.

Timidly she places her hands in his, wishing that they did not look quite so brown.

She is seized with a sudden, wild longing to be perfect for the sake of her princely lover.

When Godfrey Duston brings his brown-faced wife home with him there is a fine excitement.

But she is so pretty, so original, and, what takes so readily to her husband's mode of living that she is soon very popular.

Old Abel Cheney never visits his daughter's elegant home.

He says he would miss the trees and water, and that he is too old to learn new ways.

But Laura often visits him.

He has a housekeeper, and the little brown cabin has many luxuries which it never knew before.—Family Story Paper.

She Lost Her Last Hold and Found an Awful Realization.

He turned sternly from the slight, quivering figure, convulsed with sobs, and, leaning his elbows on the mantelpiece, gazed darkly into the empty [illegible].

"Then it is true?" he said as the frown deepened on his brow.

"Forgive me!" she sobbed, looking to and fro in her grief and abasement.

"But you told me you had never loved before 'that no man had ever stirred your heart.'"

"Not as I have loved you!" she cried, wildly.

"And yet you admit that you were engaged to Ferguson of the class of '87?"

"Yes," she murmured.

"And that before that you had an understanding with Williamson of '86?"

"Yes."

"And with Graham of '85?"

"No, no," she cried, "not with him—with both his brothers in the Sheffield scientific—but not with him."

"But you were engaged to Sandiman of '85?" he went on, referring to a letter in his hand.

"Can you not forgive me?" she pleaded.

"I could, Clara," he said after a pause—"I believe I could bring myself to it if that were all. But you were also engaged to McHaffy of '84?"

"Ah!" she cried, feebly, "do not spurn me from you!"

"What have you to say for yourself?" he demanded, hoarsely. "Speak, woman!"

Wellsboro Gazette.

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 20, 1890.

FRED K. WRIGHT, Editor and Proprietor. FRANK CONEVERY,

POLITICAL ANNOUNCEMENTS.

The following named persons are announced as candidates for the office specified below, subject to the decision of the Democratic County Convention

FOR COUNTY COMMISSIONER,
HARRY D. WHEELER, of Delmar
C. H. TREMAINE, of Lawrence.

I hereby announce myself as a Democratic candidate for County Commissioner.
C. H. DEWITT, Mainsburg, Pa.

MR. BRYCE, in the English House of Commons on Thursday, said he gave the whole credit for any benefit accruing to British subjects in Samoa to the spirited action of the United States.

SEVERAL of the GAZETTE'S Democratic contemporaries have mentioned Speaker Reed as a possible Republican candidate for the Presidency in 1892. Without doubt Mr. Reed would like to receive the nomination, but there is little danger of his securing the same. The selection of Reed by the Republicans is more than the Democratic party can hope for.

MORMONISM received its death blow last week. The election held in Salt Lake City resulted in a victory for the entire non-Mormon ticket, the majorities ranging from 1,500 to 2,000. The Mormons cry fraud. But that is all the good it will do them. Polygamy and Mormonism have got to go. Mormons must be satisfied with one wife at a time or else do time in a prison.

GOVERNOR BEAVER has appointed D. J. Waller, Jr., of Bloomsburg, Columbia county, Superintendent of Public Instruction, to succeed the late Dr. Higbee. Mr. Waller is President of the Bloomsburg Normal School, and has for years been prominently and actively engaged in educational matters. There were about twenty aspirants for the position, all with good endorsements.

IN the great Republican State of Kansas an election riot occurred the other day, in which over a hundred persons were engaged. Several [illegible] and a number severely injured. The Harrisburg Patriot says: "The estimable sectional press will roar this matter gently as a sucking dove. It didn't occur down South and therefore cannot be used to fire the Northern heart."

BISHOP FINK, of the Roman Catholic Church of Leavenworth, Kansas, in his lenten pastal letter states a great truth. "It seems," says he, "that almost every industry in our country is protected in order to amass riches in the hands of the few by which the many will have to suffer. The only classes that are not protected are those that should need it most —the laboring men and the farming population."

A MEMORIAL has been presented to Congress calling attention to the whole-sale adulteration of food all over the country. Special agents of the Agricultural Department report that the people lose $675,000,000 a year from these adulterations, and that diseased milk alone kills at least 600,000 children annually. It is time that this matter was given attention. The evil is one requiring immediate action on the part of the law-makers of the country.

THOUGH somewhat late, a Western Republican farmer contributes the following. Never before was such an effort put forth to elect any party candidate, and I, for one, am disgusted at the sanctimonious assertion that President Harrison's nomination and election was the 'work of the Lord' and not the result of hard political work, and shrewd political management. Go talk to the Republican Senators. It is hard to find one who will say that he is satisfied with the Administration."

"ARE the Molly Maguires again forming," is a question which at present is occupying the attention of the authorities of Chester county. The recent murder of a Reading railroad detective in Phoenixville is said to have been the work of this society of assassins. The Reading railroad officials are now working on the clue which it is thought may lead to the unearthing of the infamous organization which infested the Pennsylvania coal regions a few years ago, or at least result in the discovery of a society formed for similar purposes.

THE Washington correspondent of the Pittsburg Dispatch is of the opinion that Harrison isn't very highly regarded by the leading members of his party. He writes his paper concerning this matter as follows: "I have never heard anything like the cussing Harrison and his Cabinet officers are getting from Republicans of all shades and colors and kinds. The criticisms of Cleveland by the Democrats after he had been in office for a year were caresses compared with those of Harrison by the Republicans. I verily believe that Andy Johnson was as popular with the Republican party at any time as he [illegible] of William Henry Harri-

GEN. A. K. MCCLURE of the Philadelphia Times telegraphed his paper from Washington last week as follows: "I have not met one considerate Republican leader, and I have seen many of them, who does not fear that Speaker Reed is playing dangerous both which will ripen in a fearful harvest of profligacy, demoralization and dynasty. While none will speak to the world on the subject, there are very few, if any, of the party leaders who regard the Republican majority in the next Congress and they believe that the policy of the Speaker will be arrayed in the next [illegible] ions of the next presidential [illegible] party. Yet there are prominent Republicans who [illegible] that the Speaker will [illegible] a grand [illegible] rald on the Treasury. When the [illegible] has exhausted [illegible] will

How the tariff boom the farming [illegible] in the West is graphically illustrated in this extract from a letter, written by a farmer in Thayer county, Nebraska, and printed in the Chicago Herald: "We are having fine times now in the West, under Harrison's Administration. It makes the Republicans bulge out their eyes. For they are not getting what was promised last Fall. But I am in hopes they will get more and more of the same kind, as it is the only way you can make them see anything. They are offered 14 cents a bushel for corn, but everything is full, and they can't get cars to ship it away. The prairies are covered with stacks of corn, for the lumber to build a crib costs more than they can get for the corn that will fill it. Everybody is piling it on the ground. Fourteen cents a bushel for corn is certainly a costly way of educating the Western farmer. Indications are not wanting that an increasing number of them are getting very tired of such high priced schooling.

MARIAN HARLAND sends a circular appealing to the women of America to restore the ruined monument marking the grave of Mary Washington, the mother of George Washington, who was buried in private grounds near Fredericksburg, Va. In 1833 the cornerstone of a monument was laid by President Jackson with impressive ceremonies, but a wealthy New Yorker, who had undertaken the work, failed in business and the monument was abandoned. From the picture accompanying the circular it would appear that the monument has been left nearly finished since 1833, the only thing necessary being a slight addition to the pedestal and the elevation to its proper position of the granite shaft that lies on the ground beside it. The design contemplates a bust at the pinnacle of the shaft with a wreath and soaring eagle above it, a head-dress which might very well be dispensed with. It is certainly a pity that the memory of the mother of the Father of his Country should not be honored by a finished monument, and as no one volunteers to take up the work of the liberal New Yorker, whose very name appears to be forgotten, it may be hoped that the Home Maker, of which Miss Harland is editor, will succeed in the enterprise.

INCREASING THE COUNTY TAXES.

The Agitator is the only paper that has shown enterprise enough to print the evidence in the tax appeal cases in this county.—Agitator.

Why should the evidence in the tax appeal cases of the coal companies be printed? Will this convince the farmer and individual tax-payer that the coal companies are paying their just proportion of the county tax, and will the printing of this evidence lighten the burden of taxes now being carried by the farmers of Tioga county? There is no occasion for printing this enormous mass of testimony. The farmers is well aware that he has been and is being robbed daily by the companies, as a direct result of Judge Mitchell's decision. More than this, it isn't customary to resuscitate dead men that they may be given an opportunity of reading their obituary notices, prepared by the "enterprising" newspaper which claims to print all the "essential facts" in connection therewith. This particular kind of "enterprise" doesn't seem to meet with popular favor.

The Agitator lays claim to "enterprise" [illegible] voluminous mass of testimony. It is a peculiar kind of "enterprise," however, when the fact is taken into consideration that it would not have printed a single line, even of the "essential facts," had it not anticipated compensation through the instrumentality of Judge Mitchell. Hence the cause of the Agitator's "enterprise" is readily traced to a desire to get a chance at the public teat. The recondite plans of this "enterprising" paper have been made plain by recent developments. When it printed that wonderful compilation of "essential facts" it did so with the definite understanding that it was to have the printing of the entire evidence in book form. It is believed that this will make a volume containing from 800 to 500 pages. Estimating the cost of this work at $1 per page, it will readily be perceived why the Agitator display'd such an unusual amount of "enterprise" in publishing the "essential facts."

Judge Mitchell in ordering this work printed, at the county's expense, solely for the purpose of attempting to grind axe himself, has added to the enormous load of taxes now being carried by the already over-burdened tax-payer. There was no demand for this action on the part of the Court. Neither the people or the companies care about wading through this mass of evidence, after a final decision has been rendered. The people know they have been wronged, while the coal companies have no complaint to make, as they have escaped the payment of their honest proportion of the county taxes. If every tax-payer in the county will take the trouble to read it, even though it may be a true and not a garbled copy. As before remarked a dead man, as a general thing, cares very little about reading his obituary notice. These books containing this evidence, in view of the fact that there is no appeal from the decision of the Court, will be fully as valuable as a last year's comic almanac.

Now let us see what the unjust decision of Judge Mitchell, and the sickly attempt of the Agitator to exonerate him, will have cost the county:

LET THE COMMISSION WHICH IS TO BE APPOINTED UNDER THE PROVISIONS OF SENATOR PEFFER'S BILL MAKE THE DISCOVERY. THE FARMER IS ANXIOUS TO KNOW.

QUAY'S ROTTEN RECORD.

The Chief Political Operations of Pennsylvania's Great Boss.

From the New York Gazette.

The New York World of Monday, February 10th, printed a thirteen-column sketch entitled "Matthew Stanley Quay: A Detailed Story of the Career of Penn sylvania's Great Vote Buying, National Boss." It recites the chief political operations of the boss's life without mercy. If the story is true, the boss should be scourged from society; if untrue, he should hold the World to account, and if he does not do the latter he will practically confess that it is true. The World professes to give a true account of the forged proclamation upon which the troops were called out to fire upon the Pittsburg strikers in 1887; of the corrupt scheme to rob the State of $4,000,000, to compensate $2,000,000 damages caused by that very proclamation; of the Pardon Board infamy, when Kemble and the convicted bribers were turned loose; of a great robbery of the State Treasury in 1879 by Quay, Cashier Wallace, and others, and of the restitution of some of the stolen funds by Don Cameron; and many other crimes and corruptions—including the regular plunder of the State Treasury by private use of its funds during many years—all of which, with names, dates and figures, it circumstantially lays at the door of Boss Quay. It also shows how Quay adroitly availed himself of the Republican prejudice against Catholics to retrieve his disgrace after the Riot bill business, to defeat McDevitt for State Treasurer, and to seize the nomination himself by which he restored himself to power and became Boss, Senator and Chairman.

CARNEGIE SCORED.

A Leading Labor Newspaper Censures the Scotch Millionaire.

The Commoner, a labor newspaper of Pittsburg, of Saturday contained a scathing rebuke to Andrew Carnegie, whose picture together with a brief article was printed in the Gazette last week. The writer, after questioning the spirit which prompts the "gorgeous library donation" made by Mr. Carnegie to Allegheny and Pittsburg, says:

Mr. Carnegie is a fair representative of a class of men who gain fame and fortune at the expense of the poor. The money which has gone to the erection of the structures which he presents represents so much money taken from the [illegible] so many [illegible] and wails of anguish; so many starving families; so many sick men, delicate women and feeble babies. It means the intensification of the greatest curse and crime of the age that of involuntary poverty. The world is no richer by such gifts, but immeasurably poorer [illegible] so many [illegible] should as it must be by the stains of so many evils? Would Andrew Carnegie give one dollar to a beggar deserving of assistance if his giving was not in some way brought to the notice of the world? Would he not be acting far more justly by devoting his accumulated wealth to increasing the wages and bettering the condition of those in his employ? Those who created his wealth are eking out a miserable existence, while he scatters broadcast what should belong to them. The working people do not want libraries purchased at such a terrible cost.

OIL INSTEAD OF ICE.

Pennsylvania Lumbermen Using Petroleum to Gorge Their Slides.

A Williamsport correspondent writes as follows to the Pittsburg Dispatch: In the lumber regions of Northern Pennsylvania a curious expedient has been resorted to for the purpose of getting the logs out of the woods. Hundreds of barrels of crude oil have been sent to the camps, and this fluid poured over the slides." This was intended to take the place of snow. Logs can only be gotten to the market over slippery paths, so when there was no snow or ice they greased the mountain slides, but in spite of that the vast lumber interests of the State have suffered to a serious extent from this mild Winter.

This is the first time that crude petroleum has been used to lubricate the slides to any extent. Some of the slides are twelve miles long, starting away back on the summit of a mountain and rounding through the passes; in some instances shooting up one hill and down another in a series of inclines. The momentum the logs gather with the distance sends them along at a furious rate of speed, and the crude oil has been found not to wear off for nearly a week. At the upward incline horses are hitched to the last log, and by pulling this pushes possibly thirty logs in front, so easy does the petroleum make the slide.

The snow storm of the 9th caused a sensation in Williamsport. These figures will tell why. There are to-day 250,000,000 feet of timber lying in the woods which ought to have been in the booms of Williamsport by this time. In other words, February 1st has usually seen that wonderful amount of timber lying in the river here, and much of it in the mills being finished for the market. This forced blockade is worth millions of dollars. The logs as they lie [illegible] are worth $4.50 per 1,000 for hemlock and from $11 to $[illegible]

TO WIDEN THE GAUGE.

The Pennsylvania Railroad Planning Broad Gauge Tracks.

An Addison dispatch to the Elmira Gazette says that the Addison & Pennsylvania railroad will at a date in the near future become a standard gauge is conclusively shown in business transactions pending. Superintendent Frank M. Baker has been on a tour of inspection the past few days, assisted by other well versed in railroading, and the results reached are both bright and flattering for the new departure. Above Westfield the ties laid are standard width and the rails standard weight, while bridges, culverts, etc., are built, or building, on this plan.

The A. & P. will also be extended further into the Keystone State. The point of interest in the movement appears to be centered in the endeavor to put through a rival line from Hornellsville to Coudersport, and the company occupying the field will receive the better support. A vast tract of lumber and coal regions is ready to be developed and public demands warrants that these resources be brought forth. Had it not been for the disastrous floods of 1889 the A. & P. would have been a standard gauge now. The recent election of officers in Elkland called forth some interesting discussion of the affairs of the road, its future prospects, and the desire to do business on a larger scale. The patronage is good, and the Erie finds in the A. & P. one of its most substantial feeders.

CROOKED CREEK CHAT.

Matrimonial Rumors—Rev. Mr. Moon's Coming Lecture—Individualities.

Wedding bells will soon be awakening the sleeping echoes of our sunny vale by their joyful chimes, so says Dame Rumor.

Mr. Chad Stebbins has been spending a few days with his sister, Mrs. T. Mitchell, and other relatives.

Mr. B. C. Hymes and daughter, of Wellsboro, were called to the bedside of his mother one day last week. She is now slowly recovering.

Mrs. Cramer's sister has been visiting her the past week.

Mr. Maxwell and wife, of Penn Yan, N. Y., while en route to Wellsboro, stopped off a few days with Mrs. Maxwell's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Holiday.

P. A. West went to Wellsboro on Wednesday to take charge of the hay barn of Mr. James Rob.

Miss Gladys Root goes this week to Aurora, Cayuga county, N. Y., where she intends to spend the three ensuing months in school. Her host of friends, though loth to part with her, can but wish her success and God speed.

Two weeks from next Thursday, the 6th of March, Elder Moon will deliver a sermon to the soldiers and G. A. R. men at the Hollidaytown Church. As Elder Moon is an able speaker and a soldier his discourse will, doubtless, be well worth listening to. All old soldiers are cordially invited.

The oyster supper was a decided success, both socially and pecuniarily. It is hoped that it will be but the first of a series of such sociables. OLD ASA.

GRAND ARMY MEN MEET.

Eight Hundred Delegates at the State Encampment at Shamokin.

The twenty-fourth annual State Encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic met at Shamokin last week. Thomas J. Stewart, Department Commander, [illegible] gates were present. Reports showed that the numerical strength of the Department of Pennsylvania is 48,000.

Assistant Adjutant General McCormick, the executive officer of the Department, reported the past year as one of unusual prosperity, the Department having grown from 581 posts, with 41,881 comrades, on December 31, 1888, to 596 posts, with 44,613 comrades, on December 31, 1889, a net gain of 15 posts and 2,732 comrades. The total gain was 9,164, but the losses aggregated 6,381, as follows: Deaths, 625; honorable discharges, 148; transfers, 613; suspensions, 4,978; dishonorable discharges, 8.

The amount expended for charity was $37,507.03. The receipts of the Department, as shown in Assistant Quartermaster General Wilson's report, were $15,257.76, expenditures, $13,444.40, leaving a balance of $2,010.00.

An interesting addition to the financial statistics is a full accounting of the fund collected and disbursed for the Johnstown sufferers. The total amount received was $32,229.02, of which $32,209.36 were expended. The receipts were made up by contributions from twenty-one States and the District of Columbia, of which Pennsylvania gave $2,527.29.

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 20, 1...

...by the Tioga Publ... of the West Ward ...

...Tom ... her ... that it was ... on the "b".

"Up you go, Holbrook," ...ked Tom. "Quick!"

Holbrook climbed like a cat and was on the roof in a twinkling.

Tom lifted Angie by ... to ... to the top of the table and then on to the chair, bringing up on the ... after her.

He lifted the girl up by the waist so that Holbrook could get a firm grasp of her arms.

She was then drawn up on the roof.

"Now, Holbrook," cried Tom, "away with you. Quick! Get the girl out of harm's way as soon as you can. One of you," he continued, turning to the chief's men, "go with them to protect them. Shadow, run down to the chief and tell him to come up here the way we came with the rest of his men. I have an idea."

The Shadow disappeared.

Tom was the general commanding the forces, and he did have an idea a great deal.

He seized the candle and made a rapid examination of the rooms. He satisfied himself as to how those who came would enter, and he quickly determined how to dispose of his forces. Finding the doors bolted and barred from the inside, he unbarred and unbolted them.

By this time the others had arrived.

"Have you found her?" asked the chief.

"Yes, and Holbrook has carried her off."

"Then the job is over?"

"Not by a red shot."

"What now?"

"I've set a trap here, and we'll catch a bird."

"The man who abducted the girl?"

"Yes. Have you bull's eyes with you?"

"Yes, and shooters and handcuffs."

"Good. Then we can put out this light. Hold on."

They were startled by a noise above their heads.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

THE SETTING OF THE TRAP.

The noise which had startled the party was made by the return of the detective ... accompanied Holbrook and Annie.

"They are safely off in a carriage," he said.

"Heavens!" ...led Tom, "he didn't take her on the street?"

"Yes, that's what he did," replied the chief's assistant.

"What impudence! I didn't want him to do that. He might have been seen by the parties who abducted her."

"I don't think they were. He ran her up to the next corner and caught the cab there, and was off in a jiffy. They attracted attention from nobody; I was behind them all the way."

"All right; if the alarm has been given it can't be helped now. I say, chief, station two men at each door opening into the outside. Let each man take his shooter and one have a bull's eye ready for use. You and I will take our places at the middle door, one in each room. Shadow, you can show us the street and slip up into the hall outside there, so as to give us plenty of warning, if any one comes upstairs."

"I can't; the stairs are nailed and the door locked," replied the Shadow.

"I had forgotten that," said Tom.

"Pick it, can't you?" said the chief.

"There's a set of skeleton..."

The Shadow took them and disappeared.

"Now," said Tom, "to place the table and chairs where they were."

When this was done, he added:

"Now to your places, and out with the light."

They were in total darkness; what light there was came from the dormer windows and the broken skylight.

They waited some time in silence, relieved only by the breathing of the men.

Presently they heard a light tread on the outside of the door; then a muttering sound.

"Is it you, Shadow?" asked Tom.

"Yes."

"All right. Conceal yourself and don't let the man see you when he comes."

"I'll make sure of that."

Then there was a longer wait and a longer silence.

This was broken by the quick patter of bare feet on the roof, and a voice:

"He's a-comin' up de street now. Give it to 'im good."

It was the imp, who had constituted himself a skirmisher on the outside, at the skylight.

Tom could not restrain a laugh. All public service is performed through selfish consideration, he thought.

In a moment more a scratching was heard on the door.

"Some one's coming," whispered Tom. "Watch both doors."

Then they heard a hasty stumbling on the stairs, a heavy step in the hall; the door opening into the rear room was tried; and then further steps and the front room door was tried.

...

"Fellow, you won't have to go to jail, will you? She's not dead. She has left Nova Shelves, we'll be ready."

The man turned upon him a look of bitter malignity, and opened his mouth as if to speak, when he was prevented by a cry of surprise from the chief, Hanford.

"Hello! Hello! Why, boys, this is a capture indeed! And who do you think this is?" bending down and peering into the handcuffed man's face.

"Who?" asked Tom.

"Scar Top Johnny, of all men in the world. This is a good night's haul. Twenty-five hundred dollars reward for this bird. He's been wanted these eighteen months for the stealing of the child of that rich man near Hartford."

With this he took the man's head in his hands and parting the hair showed a deep scar on it.

"An old acquaintance, Tom. I gave him this scar myself six years ago, when he and a gang were robbing express cars in the west."

The man had evidently determined that, whatever else might occur, speech from him would not, and he contented himself by...

POLITICAL ANNOUNCEMENTS.

The following named persons are announced as candidates for the office specified below, subject to the decision of the Democratic County Convention:

FOR COUNTY COMMISSIONER,
HARRY D. WHEELER, of Delmar.
C. H. TREMAINE, of Lawrence.

I hereby announce myself as a Democratic candidate for County Commissioner.
C. H. DEWITT, Mainesburg, Pa.

MR. BRYCE, in the English House of Commons on Thursday, said he gave the whole credit for any benefit accruing to British subjects in Samoa to the spirited action of the United States.

SEVERAL of the GAZETTE'S Democratic contemporaries have mentioned Speaker Reed as a possible Republican candidate for the Presidency in 1892. Without doubt Mr. Reed would like to receive the nomination, but there is little danger of his securing the same. The selection of Reed by the Republicans is more than the Democratic party can hope for.

MORMONISM received its death blow last week. The election held in Salt Lake City resulted in a victory for the entire non-Mormon ticket, the majorities ranging from 1,500 to 2,000. The Mormons cry fraud. But that is all the good it will do them. Polygamy and Mormonism have got to go. Mormons must be satisfied with one wife at a time or else do time in a prison.

GOVERNOR BEAVER has appointed D. J. Waller, Jr., of Bloomsburg, Columbia county, Superintendent of Public Instruction, to succeed the late Dr. Higbee. Mr. Waller is President of the Bloomsburg Normal School, and has for years been prominently and actively engaged in educational matters. There were about twenty aspirants for the position, all with good endorsements.

In the great Republican State of Kansas an election riot occurred the other day, in which over a hundred persons were engaged. Several [illegible] and a number severely injured. The Harrisburg Patriot says: "The estimable sectional press will roar this matter gently as a sucking dove. It didn't occur down South and therefore cannot be used to fire the Northern heart."

BISHOP FINK, of the Roman Catholic Church of Leavenworth, Kansas, in his lenten pastal letter states a great truth. "It seems," says he, "that almost every industry in our country is protected in order to amass riches in the hands of the few by which the many will have to suffer. The only classes that are not protected are those that could need it most—the laboring men and the farming population."

A MEMORIAL has been presented to Congress calling attention to the whole-sale adulteration of food all over the country. Special agents of the Agricultural Department report that the people lose $375,000,000 a year from these adulterations, and that diseased milk alone kills at least 500,000 children annually. It is time that this matter was given attention. The evil is one requiring immediate action on the part of the law makers of the country.

THOUGH somewhat late, a Western Republican farmer contributes the following:

"Never before was such an effort put forth to elect any party candidate, and I, for one, am disgusted at the sanctimonious assertion that President Harrison's nomination and election was the work of the Lord and not the result of hard political work, and shrewd political management. Go talk to the Republican Senators. It is hard to find one who will say that he is satisfied with the Administration."

"ARE the Molly Maguires again forming," is a question which at present is occupying the attention of the authorities of Chester county. The report of the murder of a Reading railroad detective in Phoenixville is said to have been the work of this society of assassins. The Reading railroad officials are now working on the clue which it is thought may lead to the unearthing of the infamous organization which infested the Pennsylvania coal regions a few years ago, or at least result in the discovery of a society formed for similar purposes.

THE Washington correspondent of the Pittsburg Dispatch is of the opinion that Harrison isn't very highly regarded by the leading members of his party. He writes his paper concerning this matter as follows: "I have never heard anything like the 'cussing' Harrison and his Cabinet officers are getting from Republicans of all shades and colors and kinds. The criticisms of Cleveland by the Democrats after he had been in office for a year were caresses compared with those of Harrison by the Republicans. I verily believe that Andy Johnson was as popular with the Republican party at any time as he [illegible] of William Henry Harrison. [illegible], Republican, [illegible] Mr. Quay has [illegible] places in [illegible] presidents or [illegible] the [illegible] fidence [illegible] readers with farmers [illegible] if [illegible] hysterical [illegible] He never [illegible] wants the [illegible] to be depended upon to do [illegible] and dominate the [illegible] standing [illegible] selected is fully up to the [illegible] and of political purity [illegible]

COL. A. K. [illegible] of the Philadelphia Times, telegraphed his paper from Washington last week as follows: "I have not met one considerate Republican leader, and I have seen many of them, who does not fear that Speaker Reed is sowing dragon's teeth which will ripen in a fearful harvest of profligacy, demoralization and dry rot. While none will speak to the world on the subject, there are very few, if any, of the party leaders who regard the Republican party as holding their majority in the next Congress, and they believe that the policy of the Speaker will be arraigned in the next [illegible] as one of the most potent causes of party disaster. Yet there are prominent Republicans who [illegible] the Speaker will [illegible] the Republican party [illegible] the verdict of the House will [illegible] a grand [illegible] raid on the Democratic [illegible] When the [illegible] has [illegible] will [illegible]

How the tariff boosts the farming business in the West is graphically illustrated in this extract from a letter written by a farmer in Thayer county, Nebraska, and printed in the Chicago Herald. "We are having fine times here in the West, under Harrison's Administration. It makes the Republicans bulge out their eyes. For they are not getting what was promised last Fall. But I am in hopes they will get more and more of the same kind, as it is the only way you can make them see anything. They are offered 14 cents a bushel for corn, but everything is full, and they can't get cars to ship it away. The prairies are covered with stacks of corn, for the lumber to build a crib costs more than they can get for the corn that will fill it. Everybody is piling it on the ground. Fourteen cents a bushel for corn is certainly a costly way of educating the Western farmer. Indications are not wanting that an increasing number of them are getting very tired of such high priced schooling.

MARIAN HARLAND sends a circular appealing to the women of America to restore the ruined monument marking the grave of Mary Washington, the mother of George Washington, who was buried in private grounds near Fredericksburg, Va. In 1833 the corner-stone of a monument was laid by President Jackson with impressive ceremonies, but a wealthy New Yorker, who had undertaken the work, failed in business and the monument was abandoned. From the picture accompanying the circular it would appear that the monument has been left nearly finished since 1833, the only thing necessary being a slight addition to the pedestal and the elevation to its proper position of the granite shaft that lies on the ground beside it. The design contemplates a bust at the pinnacle of the shaft with a wreath and soaring eagle above it, a head-dress which might very well be dispensed with. It is certainly a pity that the memory of the mother of the Father of his Country should not be honored by a finished monument, and as no one volunteers to take up the work of the liberal New Yorker, whose very name appears to be forgotten, it may be hoped that the Home Maker, of which Miss Harland is editor, will succeed in the enterprise.

INCREASING THE COUNTY TAXES.

The Agitator is the only paper that has shown enterprise enough to print the evidence in the tax appeal cases in this county.—Agitator.

Why should the evidence in the tax appeal cases of the coal companies be printed? Will this convince the farmer and individual tax-payer that the coal companies are paying their just proportion of the county, tax, and will the printing of this evidence lighten the burden of taxes now being carried by the farmers of Tioga county? There is no occasion for printing this enormous mass of testimony. The farmer is well aware that he has been and is being robbed daily by the companies, as a direct result of Judge Mitchell's decision. More than this, it isn't customary to resuscitate dead men that they may be given an opportunity of reading their obituary notices, prepared by the "enterprising" newspaper which claims to print all the "essential facts" in connection therewith. This particular kind of "enterprise" doesn't seem to meet with popular favor.

The Agitator lays claim to "enterprise" [illegible] voluminous mass of testimony. It is a peculiar kind of "enterprise," however, when the fact is taken into consideration that it would not have printed a single line, even of the "essential facts," had it not been compelled [illegible] through the instrumentality of Judge Mitchell. Hence the cause of the Agitator's "enterprise" is readily traced to a desire to get a chance at the public teat. The recondite plans of this "enterprising" paper have been made plain by recent developments. When it printed that wonderful compilation of "essential facts" it did so with the definite understanding that it was to have the printing of the entire evidence in book form. It is believed that this will make a volume containing from 800 to 500 pages. Estimating the cost of this work at $1 per page, it will readily be perceived why the Agitator display such an unusual amount of "enterprise" in publishing the "essential facts."

Judge Mitchell in ordering this work printed, at the county's expense, solely for the purpose of attempting to [illegible] himself, has added to the enormous load of taxes now being carried by the already over-burdened tax-payer. There was no demand for the action on the part of the Court. Neither the people or the companies care about wading through this mass of evidence, after a final decision has been rendered. The people know they have been wronged, while the coal companies have no complaint to make, as they have escaped the payment of their honest proportion of the county taxes. If every tax-payer in the county shall be furnished with this volume of evidence, not one in twenty will take the trouble to read it, even though it may be a true and not a garbled copy. As before remarked a dead man, as a general thing, cares very little about reading his obituary notice. These books containing this evidence, in view of the fact that there is no appeal from the decision of the Court, will be fully as valuable as a last year's comic almanac.

Now let us see what the unjust decision of Judge Mitchell, and the sickly attempt of the Agitator to exonerate him, will have cost the county:

|---|---|
| Cost of appeal cases | $211.56 |
| Stenographer's fee [illegible] report | 98.40 |
| Probable cost of printing evidence in book form, at $ per page | 400 00 |
| Reduction of Coal Companies' taxes over [illegible] in 1888 | [illegible] |

QUAY'S ROTTEN RECORD.

The Chief Political Operations of Pennsylvania's Great Boss.

From the New York Gazette.

The New York World of Monday, February 10th, printed a thirteen-column sketch entitled "Matthew Stanley Quay: A Detailed Story of the Career of Pennsylvania's Great Vote Buying, National Boss." It recites the chief political operations of the boss's life without mercy. If the story is true, the boss should be scourged from society; if untrue, he should hold the World to account, and if he does not do the latter he will practically confess that it is true. The World professes to give a true account of the forged proclamation upon which the troops were called out to fire upon the Pittsburg strikers in 1887; of the corrupt scheme to rob the State of $4,000,000, to compensate $2,000,000 damages caused by that very proclamation; of the Pardon Board infamy, when Kemble and the convicted bribers were turned loose; of a great robbery of the State Treasury in 1879 by Quay, Cashier Walters and others, and of the restitution of some of the stolen funds by Don Cameron; and many other crimes and corruptions—including the regular plunder of the State Treasury by private use of its funds during many years—all of which, with names, dates and figures, it circumstantially lays at the door of Boss Quay. It also shows how Quay adroitly availed himself of the Republican prejudice against Catholics to retrieve his disgrace after the Riot bill business, to defeat McDevitt for State Treasurer, and to seize the nomination himself—by which he restored himself to power and became Boss, Senator and Chairman.

CARNEGIE SCORED.

A Leading Labor Newspaper Censures the Scotch Mill Owner.

The Commoner, a labor newspaper of Pittsburg, on Saturday contained a scathing rebuke to Andrew Carnegie, whose picture together with a brief article was printed in the GAZETTE last week. The writer, after questioning the spirit which prompts the "gorgeous library donation" made by Mr. Carnegie to Allegheny and Pittsburg, says:

Mr. Carnegie is a fair representative of a class of men who gain fame and fortune at the expense of the poor. The money which has gone to the erection of the structures which he presents represents so much money taken from the pockets of [illegible] so many moans and wails of anguish; so many starving families; so many sick men, delicate women and feeble babies. It means the intensification of the greatest curse and crime of the age that of involuntary poverty. The world is no richer by such gifts, but immeasurably poorer. [illegible] Why should a few accept such gifts and as it must be by the stains of so many evils? Would Andrew Carnegie give one dollar to a beggar deserving of assistance if his giving was not in some way brought to the notice of the world? Would he not be acting far more justly by devoting his accumulated wealth to increasing the wages and bettering the condition of those in his employ? Those who created his wealth are eking out a miserable existence, while he scatters broadcast what should belong to them. The working people do not want libraries purchased at such a terrible cost.

OIL INSTEAD OF ICE.

Pennsylvania Lumbermen Using Petroleum to Grease Their Slides.

A Williamsport correspondent writes as follows to the Pittsburg Dispatch: In the lumber regions of Northern Pennsylvania a curious expedient has been resorted to for the purpose of getting the logs out of the woods. Hundreds of barrels of crude oil have been sent to the camps, and this fluid poured over the "slides." This was intended to take the place of snow. Logs can only be gotten to the market over slippery paths, so when there was no snow or ice they greased the mountain slides, but in spite of that the vast lumber interests of the State have suffered to a serious extent from this mild Winter.

This is the first time that crude petroleum has been used to lubricate the slides to any extent. Some of the slides are twelve miles long, starting away back on the summit of a mountain and rounding through the passes; in some instances shooting up one hill and down another in a series of inclines. The momentum the logs gather with the distance sends them along at a furious rate of speed, and the crude oil has been found not to wear off for nearly a week. At the upward incline horses are hitched to the last log, and by pulling this pushes possibly thirty logs in front, so easy does the petroleum make the slide.

The snow storm of the 9th caused a sensation in Williamsport. These figures will tell why. There are to-day 250,000,000 feet of timber lying in the woods which ought to have been in the booms of Williamsport by this time. In other words, February 1st has usually seen that wonderful amount of timber lying in the river here, and much of it in the mills being finished for the market. This forest blockade is worth millions of dollars. The logs as they lie piled are worth $4.50 per 1,000 for hemlock and from $11 to $[illegible]

TO WIDEN THE GAUGE.

The [illegible] Railroad Following Example of the A. & P.

An Addison dispatch to the Elmira Gazette says that the Addison & Pennsylvania railroad will at a date in the near future become a standard gauge is conclusively shown in business transactions pending. Superintendent Frank M. Baker has been on a tour of inspection the past few days, assisted by other well versed in railroading, and the results reached are both bright and flattering for the new departure. Above Westfield the ties laid are standard width and the rails standard weight, while bridges, culverts, etc., are built, or building, on this plan.

The A. & P. will also be extended further into the Keystone State. The point of interest in the movement appears to be centered in the endeavor to put through a rival line from Hornellsville to Coudersport, and the company occupying the field will receive the better support. A vast tract of lumber and coal regions is ready to be developed and public demands warrants that these resources be brought forth. Had it not been for the disastrous floods of 1889 the A. & P. would have been a standard gauge now. The recent election of officers in Elkland called forth some interesting discussion of the affairs of the road, its future prospects, and the desire to do business on a larger scale. The patronage is good, and the Erie finds in the A. & P. one of its most substantial feeders.

CROOKED CREEK CHAT.

Matrimonial Rumors—Rev. Mr. Moon's Coming Lecture—Individualities.

Wedding bells will soon be awakening the sleeping echoes of our sunny vale by their joyful chimes, so says Dame Rumor.

Mr. Chad Stebbins has been spending a few days with his sister, Mrs. T. Mitchell, and other relatives.

Mr. B. C. Hymes and daughter, of Wellsboro, were called to the bedside of his mother one day last week. She is now slowly recovering.

Mrs. Cramer's sister has been visiting her the past week.

Mr. Maxwell and wife, of Penn Yan, N. Y., while en route to Wellsboro, stopped off a few days with Mrs. Maxwell's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Holiday.

P. A. West went to Wellsboro on Wednesday to take charge of the hay barn of Mr. James Rob.

Miss Gladyes Root goes this week to Aurora, Cayuga county, N. Y., where she intends to spend the three ensuing months in school. Her host of friends, though loth to part with her, can but wish her success and God speed.

Two weeks from next Thursday, the 6th of March, Elder Moon will deliver a sermon to the soldiers and G. A. R. men at the Hollidaytown Church. As Elder Moon is an able speaker and a soldier his discourse will, doubtless, be well worth listening to. All old soldiers are cordially invited.

The oyster supper was a decided success, both socially and pecuniarily. It is hoped that it will be but the first of a series of such sociables. ORO ASA.

GRAND ARMY MEN MEET.

Eight Hundred Delegates at the State Encampment at Shamokin.

The twenty-fourth annual State Encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic met at Shamokin last week. Thomas J. Stewart, Department Commander, presided, and [illegible] delegates were present. Reports showed that the numerical strength of the Department of Pennsylvania is 48,000.

Assistant Adjutant General McCormick, the executive officer of the Department, reported the past year as one of unusual prosperity, the Department having grown from 581 posts, with 41,881 comrades, on December 31, 1888, to 596 posts, with 44,613 comrades, on December 31, 1889, a net gain of 15 posts and 2,732 comrades. The total gain was 9,164, but the losses aggregated 6,881, as follows: Deaths, 625; honorable discharges, 148; transfers, 613; suspensions, 4,978; dishonorable discharges, 8.

The amount expended for charity was $37,507.03. The receipts of the Department as shown in Assistant Quartermaster General Wilson's report, were $15,287.75, expenditures, $12,444.40, leaving a balance of $2,010.90.

An interesting addition to the financial statistics is a full accounting of the fund collected and disbursed for the Johnstown sufferers. The total amount received was $32,229.02, of which $32,209.36 were expended. The receipts were made up by contributions from twenty-one States and the District of Columbia, of which Pennsylvania gave $3,527.39.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Price 75c. per bottle. Sold by all druggists.

Dyspepsia

Makes the lives of many people miserable, causing distress after eating, sour stomach, sick headache, heartburn, loss of appetite, faint, "all gone" feeling, bad taste, coated tongue, and irregularity of the bowels. Dyspepsia does not get well of itself. It requires careful attention, and a remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which acts directly on the blood and nerves, such as this medicine does. It tones the stomach, regulates digestion, and builds up the whole system. Thousands have testified to the merits of Hood's Sarsaparilla for Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Biliousness, Sick Headache, Heartburn, Sour Stomach, Nervousness, Loss of Appetite, Rheumatism, Kidney and Liver Complaints, Boils, Humors, Catarrh, Scrofula, and all diseases caused by impure blood.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Sold by druggists. $1; six for $5. Prepared only by C. I. Hood & Co., Apothecaries, Lowell, Mass.

—The Tioga Railroad Company has settled with the thirty-five persons injured in the accident which occurred at Tioga Junction, September 16, 1888. The last settlement was made with James McNaney, a lumber man, who was paid $5,700. McNaney was injured in the spine and is partially paralyzed. His doctor bill and the board bills of his family, who were quartered at a farm house in the town of Southport several weeks after the accident happened, were also paid, making the total expense to the Erie company, $4,100.

Mr. W. O. Russell, of Delmar, has been granted a bonus by the business men of Tioga, for the purpose of assisting him to build and establish a grist mill at that place. Land has been given him on the line of the Fall Brook railroad for a site. Mr. Russell has accepted the offer and intends commencing operations as soon as the weather will permit. He will use the steam power now employed on his saw-mill at Delmar. There is no better location for a grist mill in Tioga county than the one at Tioga. Mr. Russell is an enterprising and reliable business man, and as such is recommended to the people of Tioga and vicinity.

—A meeting of the members of the Bucktail regiment was held in this place on Saturday, to perfect arrangements for the fourth annual reunion of the organization, to be held in Wellsboro on September 17th, 18th and 19th. Young, F. A. Deane, N. T. Chandler. It is the intention to raise a sufficient amount of money to give the veterans from abroad a free excursion to Watkins Glen. Another meeting is to be held on March 15th.

THE ROBOUON IRONSTEAMER.

Last Meeting of the Old Council—The Nickle-in-the-Slot Ordinance Killed.

The last regular meeting of the old Council on Tuesday evening was not attended by the full board of Councilmen, several of whom were interested in the election returns. Burgess Roberts wore a smiling face and Mr. Hastings seemed happy, because, as he said, the old Council was going out leaving money in the treasury.

The claim of Jacob Kech for six logs of stone and that of Charles Satterly for a mining plow, occupied the attention of the Council for some time after the reading of the minutes.

The claim of Thomas Wingate, for brush used in filling in an approach to the Charleston street bridge, was reported adversely upon by Messrs. Klock and Deane, the committee appointed to investigate the merits of the same. Mr. Deane said Mr. Wingate had consented to take $20 a reduction of $5 from the bill as first rendered. The report was referred for later consideration.

On motion of Mr. Deane the borough tax for 1889, of several indigent and sickly persons, was abated.

John A. Dibble asked the privilege of cancelling his contract by furnishing 10 and 12-inch lumber instead of 12-inch. Granted on motion of Mr. Deane.

Clerk Shattuck read a communication from Auditor-General McCamant, stating that the borough had failed to make a report of its loans for the year 1888.

On motion of Mr. Deane the clerk was directed to fill out the necessary blanks and forward the same to the Auditor General, and thus save the penalty.

On motion of Mr. Deane an order was directed to be drawn on the treasurer for $30, to pay the State tax for 1889 on loans.

Clerk Shattuck read a report of the condition of the finances of the borough, showing $309 in the treasury.

The ordinance introduced by Mr. Deane at the last meeting, prohibiting the working of any nickel-in-the-slot machines in the streets of the borough, was called up and read by the clerk. Mr. Deane said the total effect of these machines was bad and moved the adoption of the ordinance.

Burgess Roberts questioned the advisability of going to the expense of advertising an ordinance of this character.

Mr. Hastings seconded the motion of Mr. Deane, which was lost, the Burgess voting in the negative.

A large number of bills for supplies, labor, interest on bonds, etc., including the claims mentioned above, were ordered paid, when the Council adjourned to meet on March 3d, at 10 a. m., with the incoming board.

THE ALERTS' 19TH ANNUAL.

A Brilliant Success as Usual.

Beautiful ladies, elegant costumes, gallant gentlemen, entrancing music, handsome decorations, large attendance, brilliant success! What more can be said of the sixteenth annual reception and ball of Alert Hose Company, which occurred on Monday evening? But there can be more said, and we are going to say it. The receptions given by this Company are famous throughout this part of the country. They are always the leading social event of the year in Wellsboro, and as brilliant occasions never have but one rival the Eureka's reception.

The sixteenth annual of the Alerts was no exception to the precedent established by this organization, the only real difference, if any, being that the committee put forth every effort to eclipse all former events, and in this they were rewarded with unprecedented success. The attendance was larger—over one hundred and eighty couples being present—and that affair throughout was conducted on a more elaborate scale than ever before.

The concert and reception was announced for eight o'clock, and some time before that hour the guests wended their way towards Annandale Hall. As they entered the ball-room they were met near the door by the following reception committee: J. Henry Gardner, Miss Cora Strait, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Roberts, Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Rose, and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Conevery.

The hall was very richly and artistically decorated. The main entrance was draped with beautiful curtains, as were the cosy alcoves arranged in the several corners. Turkish rugs were strewn about the floor and the walls were adorned with fine pictures from the Company's parlors. Scattered about promiscuously were elegant and easy sofas, divans and chairs, for the comfort of spectators and tired dancers. In the center of the hall was the Company's handsome race cart, neatly trimmed with smilax. On the stage was seated the orchestra of ten pieces, the members being attired in full dress suits. The stage setting was very fine, and the effect of the whole was irresistibly beautiful. Annandale Hall was completely transformed, and looked more like a spacious parlor in some club house of millionaires than the plain, unpretentious hall it really is.

The concert began promptly at eight o'clock, the following choice selections being rendered by the Stopper & Fisk orchestra:

Overture—Marina ..... Lvolow
Selection—Golah ..... Lecoq
Piccolo Solo ..... Demars
C. S. Shiles.
Medley—Brass Monkey ..... Lumme man
Violin Solo—Down to Rest ..... DeBerlet
Prof. Frank Stuebgen.

At nine o'clock, or very soon after, the floor was cleared and the grand march was started, being led by Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Sweet. The serpentine movements were carried out in a graceful manner, nearly one hundred couples participating. After this the first waltz, and then on till three o'clock in the morning the scene was one of beauty and inspiration. Waltzes, lanciers, polkas, quadrilles, schottisches and gallops followed in quick succession, and notwithstanding the crowded condition of the floor during some numbers a happier company of dancers is seldom seen. There were [illegible] forty-four dances on the programme, and an unusually large number remained till the end.

The toilet of the ladies were beautiful many of the costumes being very elaborate, displaying the grace and loveliness of the wearers to most excellent advantage. They were the recipients of many flattering comments from the spectators and their gallant escorts. The members of the Alerts were attired in their parade uniforms and wore white vests and white kids. Many of the gentlemen wore the "conventional swallow-tail," and might easily have been taken for an exceedingly genteel-looking lot of metropolitan hotel waiters. However, as fashion decrees that a gentleman when in full dress shall always look exactly like a hotel waiter, so let it be. We are not trying here to reconstruct the fashion in regard to men's dress.

The refreshments were served in Armory Hall at ten and twelve o'clock. The hall was neatly trimmed with evergreens, the word "Alert" and a large figure "2" being very conspicuous on the ceiling. Several lengths of hose were also tastefully displayed. The tables were loaded with all the good things imaginable, and this part of the entertainment seemed to be fully enjoyed by all. The following was the BILL OF FARE.

Boned Turkey, Scalloned Oysters, Boiled Ham

Chocolate, Coffee.

There was a larger attendance from out of town than on any former occasion. Among those present were the following: W. H. Smith and wife, Misses Emma and Lizzie Gartland, Miss Cora Strait, Mrs. V. B. Myrtle and daughter, Mattie, Sol. Friendly, of Elmira; A. D. Knapp, F. O. Emery, W. E. Parsons, E. O. ## THE DIAMOND BUTTON

FROM THE DIARY OF A LAWYER AND THE NOTE-BOOK OF A REPORTER.

By BARCLAY NORTH.

(CHAPTER XXXII—CONTINUED.)

On arriving, three, with Tom leading, were to enter the adjoining house near-est the corner and, rushing up, take possession of the attic, and after a signal had been received from Tom's party, the others led by the chief, well supplied with "jimmies," were to make an assault on the house where Annie was confined. Holbrook was to be with the latter party.

Holbrook and Tom went up together, and taking a cab across town were on the ground earlier than the rest.

They left the cab, after having given instructions to the cabman to station himself in Bayard street half way down the block, and there await orders.

Guarding themselves as much as possible from observation, they strolled into the street and located the house in question. They were slightly disgusted, and thought they risked nothing.

They had passed the house but a few paces when Holbrook felt a tug on the skirts of his coat. He looked down and saw a ragged little boy whom he took for a [illegible] about to run away when the lad said:

"Be you goin' to train home now? He ain't up dere."

Holbrook would have spoken harshly to him, so as to rid himself of the annoyance, when Tom whispered:

"It is the boy who brought the note to you."

Then, speaking to the boy, he said:

"Come here with me," and led the way into a neighboring passage, where they could partially conceal themselves by the door.

"What do you mean by speaking him?" asked Tom, kindly and encouragingly.

"De woman sed as how wen you come you'd black his eyes and wallop 'im."

"What woman?" asked Holbrook.

"De wan I larnge de paper from to you. She promised, she did."

"Where is she?"

"In de house. She's up-stairs on de top flute. De man ain't dere. He went away just afore you come. Yer a goin' to lick 'im, ain't yer?"

"You just bet we are," said Tom. "You want us to, don't you?"

"Oh, my eye, don't I!"

"Why?"

"Cos he's kicked me often and often."

"What is he to you?"

"Nothin'. He calls me over de head wenever he gits de chance."

"Why does he do that?"

"I dunno. Cos he's ugly. Can't keep out'en his hallway."

"Ah," said Tom. "How did you see the lady?"

"I got on de roof and talked to her from de skylight."

"Can you take us up there?"

"Ov course I kin. We live up in de attic, right here. Me mither is gone away and me fader is drunk over dere in the saylOon. Dere's nobody up dere now."

"Stay here a moment with the boy, Hallcock," said Tom. He sought the chief and found him. Hurriedly telling him what he had learned from the boy, he told him to send the Shadow and two men to follow Holbrook and himself, and asked him to guard the passage to the house in which Annie was confined.

Hurrying back, the two were conveyed by the boy to the attic. The youngster showed them how he mounted to the roof, and in a moment they were on it.

The passage over the roof was perilous, for it was an old fashioned high roof, sloping at a precipitous angle from a peak in the middle, both ways.

The boy, who ran over the roof like a cat, and with the agility and confidence of one familiar with the feat, showed them the skylight.

Tom put his mouth to the broken pane and made a sound.

"Hist! hist!"

He heard a movement beneath.

"Hist, Miss Templeton!"

"Who's that?" was the answer in a female voice.

"Be quiet; help is near," he said.

A cry of joy was heard.

"Are you alone?" asked Tom.

"Yes, quite alone."

"Stand fast, then; you'll be quickly freed."
